

A Cup of Tea

Katherine Mansfield (1888-1923)

One of the most fascinating short stories by Katherine Mansfield, a New Zealand-born modernist writer who moved to England in her late twenties, where she befriended such fellow writers as D.H. Lawrence and Virginia Woolf. Published in 1922 (only one year prior to her death at the young age of 34), this short story features all the themes dear to this writer – notably, class consciousness, women's lack of self-reliance and social materialism.
