

Living Off-Grid

An ever-increasing number of Western people nowadays choose to live off-grid. This means waiving the comforts of modern life (running water, electricity, Internet, TV) and trading them for loneliness, hard work and independence. Living off-grid means becoming independent from society in terms of food, clothing, power and waste disposal. In addition, it dramatically reduces the expenses for taxation and billing (close to none) and enables you to pursue your own happiness outside the rules of the money-making system.
